How to Study Vocabulary

5 Techniques That Actually Work

1. CONTEXT FIRST — Always learn words in example sentences, not just as a list.
   Bad: 暑い = hot (forgotten in 2 days)
   Good: 今日は暑いですね！ = It's hot today, isn't it! (remembered)

2. SPACED REPETITION — Review words after 1 day, then 3 days, then 1 week.
   Use Anki (free app) to automate this. Add your own example sentences.

3. WORD FAMILIES — Learn words in groups: 朝・昼・夜 / 起きる・寝る / 好き・嫌い
   Learning opposites and related words at once doubles retention.

4. SPEAK IT — Say every new word out loud 3 times. Silently reading is not enough.
   Your mouth and ears need to learn the words too, not just your eyes.

5. USE IT TODAY — Write one sentence using each new word on the same day you learn it.
   Even a simple sentence forces your brain to encode the word actively.

! Word Types Matter!

Japanese vocabulary is categorised by type — and the type determines how you use it:

N (Noun) — follows は・が・を・に・で
V (Verb) — conjugates: 〜ます・〜ない・〜て etc.
i (い-adjective) — conjugates: 〜くない・〜かった etc.
na (な-adjective) — uses な before nouns, ではない for negative
Adv (Adverb) — placed before the verb or adjective it modifies
Part (Particle) — grammatical glue; does not change form
Exp (Expression) — set phrase; learn as a fixed unit

Always check the type column in the reference table!

Lesson 1: Greetings & Everyday Phrases (挨拶・日常表現)

These expressions are the foundation of every Japanese conversation. Many are set phrases — memorise them exactly as they are, including the situations where you use them.

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. おはようございます is for morning ONLY (until around 10am).
2. こんにちは is for daytime. Don't use it in the morning — it sounds odd.
3. すみません works for 'excuse me', 'sorry', AND getting attention.
4. ありがとうございます is more formal than ありがとう — use the long form with strangers.
5. よろしくおねがいします has no direct English translation — it expresses 'I look forward to working with you / please take care of me.'

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
おはようございます	おはようございます	Good morning	Exp	おはようございます！ Good morning!
こんにちは	こんにちは	Hello / Good afternoon	Exp	田中さん、こんにちは。 Hello, Tanaka-san.

4.	食事の後に「ごちそうさまでした」と言います。 After a meal you say 'Gochisoosamadeshita'.	True / False

✏️ Activity 2: Gap Fill

Fill in each blank with the correct word from this lesson's vocabulary.
The English translation is provided as a clue.

#	Sentence	Missing Word
1.	____、田中先生！今日もよろしくおねがいします。 _____, Teacher Tanaka! I look forward to today.
2.	友達に本を借りた。「____！」と言った。 I borrowed a book from my friend. I said '_____!'
3.	電話で「____。山田と申します。」と自己紹介する。 On the phone: '_____, I am Yamada.' (introducing oneself)
4.	夕食の前に「____」と言います。 Before dinner, we say '_____'.
5.	夜、家族に「____」と言って寝ます。 At night, you say '_____' to your family before sleeping.

💬 Activity 3: When Do You Say It?

Match each situation with the correct expression from the word box.

Word box: [おはようございます / こんにちは / ごめんなさい / いただきます / すみません / またね / おやすみなさい]

1. You bump into your friend's shopping bag.

2. You arrive at work at 8am and see your boss.

3. You sit down for lunch.

4. You want to get a waiter's attention.

5. You're going to bed.

6. You say goodbye to your classmate after school.

7. You meet your neighbour at 2pm.

✍️ Activity 4: Write Your Own Sentences

Choose 4 words from this lesson's vocabulary. Write an original Japanese sentence for each one. Try to write from memory — no peeking at the reference table!
Write the reading (hiragana) if you're not sure of the kanji.

Word: _____ Sentence:

Word: _____ Sentence:

Word: _____ Sentence:

Word: _____ Sentence:

🎭 Activity 5: Dialogue Writing

Write a short dialogue (4–6 lines) between two people meeting for the first time. Include: a greeting, an introduction, and a closing expression. Use the word box above for ideas.

Lesson 2: Numbers & Shopping (数・買い物)

Numbers are essential not just for counting — they appear in prices, times, phone numbers, and dates. Japanese has two counting systems: Chinese-origin numbers (いち、に、さん...) for most purposes, and native Japanese numbers (ひとつ、ふたつ...) for counting objects without a counter.

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. 4 and 7 have TWO readings: four = し OR よん, seven = しち OR なな. Use よん/なな in most everyday contexts (し and しち sound like 'death' and 'suffering').
2. Prices: always use いち・に・さん readings (e.g. 百円 hyakuen, 千円 sen'en).
3. いくら means 'how much?' for prices — it does NOT mean 'how many things?'
4. 〜ください means 'please give me / I'll have ~'. Very useful for shopping.

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
いくら	いくら	how much (price)?	Exp	これはいくらですか。 How much is this?

Lesson 3: Food & Eating (食べ物・食事)

Food vocabulary is some of the most useful Japanese you can learn — you'll use it every day in restaurants, supermarkets, and with friends. Pay attention to which words are nouns, adjectives, and verbs.

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. おいしい (oishii) = delicious. The plain form おいし is never used alone — always おいしい.
2. 食べる (taberu) vs 飲む (nomu): use 食べる for solid food and 飲む for liquids. You 飲む soup in Japan!
3. 好き (suki) = like. 嫌い (kirai) = dislike. Both are NA-adjectives, so: 〜が好きです / 〜が嫌いです.
4. すき焼き・お好み焼き・焼き肉 — note 焼き (yaki) means 'grilled/fried'. Recognising kanji components helps with food vocabulary.

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
食べ物	たべもの	food	N	好きな食べ物は何ですか。 What is your favourite food?
飲み物	のみもの	drink / beverage	N	飲み物は何にしますか。 What will you have to drink?
ご飯	ごはん	rice / meal	N	朝ご飯を食べましたか。 Did you eat breakfast?
朝ご飯	あさごはん	breakfast	N	毎朝、朝ご飯を食べます。 I eat breakfast every morning.
昼ご飯	ひるごはん	lunch	N	昼ご飯はどこで食べますか。 Where do you eat lunch?
晩ご飯	ばんごはん	dinner	N	今夜の晩ご飯は何ですか。 What's for dinner tonight?
おいしい	おいしい	delicious / tasty	i	このラーメンはおいしいです！ This ramen is delicious!

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
まずい	まずい	bad tasting / disgusting	i	このコーヒーはまずいですね。 This coffee tastes bad.
辛い	からい	spicy	i	このカレーはとても辛いです。 This curry is very spicy.
甘い	あまい	sweet	i	このケーキは甘すぎます。 This cake is too sweet.
好き	すき	like / favourite	na	私は寿司が好きです。 I like sushi.
嫌い	きらい	dislike	na	私は納豆が嫌いです。 I dislike natto.
レストラン	レストラン	restaurant	N	あのレストランは有名です。 That restaurant is famous.
注文する	ちゅうもんする	to order (food)	V	何を注文しますか。 What will you order?

Lesson 4: Daily Routine & Time (日課・時間)

Daily routine vocabulary lets you describe your day — an essential skill for N5. These words also often appear in the grammar patterns you'll learn (て-form sequences, 〜ます conjugation practice, time expressions).

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. 起きる (okiru) = to wake up. 寝る (neru) = to go to sleep. Both are RU-verbs (Group 2).
2. Time words: 毎朝 (maiasa) every morning, 毎晩 (maiban) every evening — 毎 (mai) means 'every'.
3. 〜時に means 'at ~ o'clock'. The に particle marks a specific time: 七時に起きます.
4. 頃 (goro) means 'around / approximately' for time: 七時頃に起きます (I wake up around 7).
5. 午前 (gozen) = AM, 午後 (gogo) = PM. Both use the kanji 午 (noon).

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
起きる	おきる	to wake up / get up	V	毎朝六時に起きます。 I wake up at 6 every morning.
寝る	ねる	to sleep / go to bed	V	十一時に寝ます。 I go to bed at 11.
朝	あさ	morning	N	朝はいつも忙しいです。 Mornings are always busy.

Lesson 5: Describing People & Things (描写・形容詞)

Adjective vocabulary is what brings your Japanese to life. At N5 you need to know i-adjectives (ending in い) and na-adjectives (followed by な before nouns). This lesson focuses on practical descriptive vocabulary and how to use it naturally.

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. いい (good) is irregular — the negative is よくない, and the past is よかった (NOT いかった!).
2. 大きい / 小さい are i-adjectives. 大きな / 小さな also exist as special forms before nouns (same meaning, slightly literary).
3. Combining adjectives: use the て-form of adjectives to chain them: 大きくて白い犬 (a big white dog).
4. ～すぎる = too ~: 高すぎる (too expensive), 辛すぎる (too spicy). Drop the い first: 高い → 高すぎる.
5. To say 'the most ~', use 一番 (ichiban): 一番好きな食べ物 (favourite food — lit. 'number one liked food').

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
いい / よい	いい / よい	good	i	今日はいい天気ですね。 The weather is good today, isn't it.

Lesson 6: Places & Getting Around (場所・移動)

Location and direction vocabulary is essential for navigating Japan. These words appear in grammar patterns with the particles に (destination), で (place of action), and を (path of movement).

1 How to Use These Words

Usage Notes

Key usage notes for this lesson:

1. 駅 (eki) = station. This word is everywhere in Japan — learn it well.
2. 右 (migi) = right, 左 (hidari) = left, まっすぐ (massugu) = straight ahead — essential for giving/receiving directions.
3. 近く (chikaku) = nearby, 遠く (tooku) = far away — these are nouns in Japanese.
4. ～の近く/前/後ろ/隣/中: position words come AFTER the noun they describe + の: 駅の前 (in front of the station).
5. あそこ/そこ/ここ are location demonstratives: ここ=here, そこ=there (near listener), あそこ=over there.

2 Vocabulary Reference Table

Study each word carefully. Read the example sentence aloud, then cover the English and try to understand the Japanese on its own.

Word	Reading	Meaning	Type	Example sentence
駅	えき	station	N	駅の前で待っています。 I'm waiting in front of the station.
